1. Passports (Biometric Passports, ePassports)

Since 2005 passports contain biometric data (see 6 for further information). The biometric passport (also known as “ePassport”; with a red cover) is valid for

- 10 years (from the age of 24) or
- six years for younger persons.

Extension of their validity is not possible. You must apply for a new one after expiration. The passports are printed by the Federal Printing Press in Berlin. Therefore please allow for a processing time of approximately 6-8 weeks. Applications should be made approximately 3 months before your old passport expires. An express surcharge of 32 Euros shortens the delivery time to approximately 2-3 weeks, depending on the application day.

The passport is available with 32 pages (regular) or 48 pages (at a surcharge) for extra visa pages.

Every applicant has to appear in person, as fingerprints need to be scanned and saved electronically on the chip of the passport. Please download the application form on our passport website page and fill it out in block letters.

Please note that applications for a passport have to be made personally at the passport office of the German Embassy Dublin (31 Trimleston Avenue, Booterstown, Co. Dublin) on principle.

Married name

If you got married in Ireland or another foreign country, you might need to declare a name change prior to the application of your passport. Therefore please go to the last preceding website, read the information given on name changes and follow the instructions. The information is also available on "Legal and Consular Service" → "Range of Consular Services" → "Name declaration".

Minors can have a biometric passport. In case of minor applicants, the legal guardians and the child must all come to the Embassy in person. The application form then has to be signed by the guardians. If the parents are married, the marriage certificate or the adequate extract of the German family register needs to be presented. If only one parent is the sole guardian, he or she needs to provide evidence of sole guardianship (i.e. divorce decree or court decision). If the two legal guardians do not have the same married name, a name declaration to determine the child's surname may be necessary. Please also read our information about "Name declaration" on our website on "Legal and Consular Service" -->"Range of Consular Services".

Upon application, the following documents must be provided in original or certified copy:

- old passport or identity card, if applicable: report of loss record from the police station
- filled in application form (download on our website)
- 2 recent biometric photos (see 6. for more information)
- deregistration confirmation of the last German residence (so-called "Abmeldebescheinigung")
- proof of address for Ireland (e.g. utility bill), not older than three months
- birth certificate ***
- proof of civil status (marriage certificate / divorce decree / death certificate of partner) ***
- if applicable: change of name certificate / name declaration ***
- if applicable: proof of citizenship (Naturalisation certificate or Certificate of Nationality / "Staatsangehörigkeitsausweis") ***
- if applicable: proof of doctorate
- if preferred: a self-addressed envelope with a 8 EUR stamp, so that the passport can be sent to you by registered post upon completion.
Alternatively, you can collect the passport from the Embassy.

If you don't carry these documents with you, you might also ask the registration office in Germany to fax or email it to the Embassy before your actual appointment (fax: 00353-1-2693800 or German fax number: 030-1817 67158, email: info@dublin.diplo.de)

Please note!

Depending on the particular case, you may be asked to provide further documents.

All documents must be presented in the original or as certified copy with one regular copy. The Embassy charges a fee for copies made in-house.

2. Temporary Passports

Temporary Passports are issued in exceptional cases for a maximum of 1 year. You have to apply for the regular biometric passport at the same time. However, this passport does not authorise to a visa-free entry to the USA. The processing time generally depends on the completeness of the documents provided. Documents to submit > see 1. Passports + proof of urgency (e.g. flight ticket)

3. Children's Passports

Children's Passports are only issued until the age of 12 (from the age of 12, one has to apply for a regular passport). The Children's Passport is valid for six years. An extension is possible until the child's 12th birthday. However, this passport does not authorise to a visa-free entry to the USA.

In case of minor applicants, the legal guardians and the child must all come to the Embassy in person. The application form then has to be signed by the guardians. If the parents are married, the marriage certificate or the adequate extract of the German family register needs to be presented. If only one parent is the sole guardian, he or she needs to provide evidence of sole guardianship (i.e. divorce decree or court decision). If the two legal guardians do not have the same married name, a name declaration to determine the child's surname may be necessary. Please also read our information about "Name declaration" on our website on "Legal and Consular Service" -->"Range of Consular Services".

Upon application, the following documents must be provided in original or certified copy:

- old Children's Passport or ID if applicable
- 2 biometric passport photos
- birth certificate
- proof of parents' address, not older than 3 months (e.g. utility bill)
- identity card or passport of both parents
- if applicable: parents' marriage certificate, respectively divorce decree with custody decision
- if applicable proof of the parents' marriage name or proof of name declaration for older siblings
- if applicable: deregistration confirmation from Germany (so called "Abmeldebescheinigung")
- if applicable: consent form of the absent parent (can also be signed and certified at a police station or the Honorary Consul upon presentation of photo ID)
- If the German citizenship has been acquired by birth: documents that provide evidence of the mother's/father's German citizenship at the time of the birth (i.e. Passport or certificate of naturalization/birth certificate)
- if preferred: a self-addressed envelope with a 8 EUR stamp so that the passport can be sent to you by registered post upon completion.
Alternatively, you can collect the passport from the Embassy.

Please note!

Depending on the particular case, you may be asked to provide further documents.

All documents must be presented in the original or as certified copy with one regular copy. The Embassy charges a fee for copies made in-house.

4. Travel Permit in Lieu of Passport

In case of loss or theft of your passport, you should immediately go to a police station and report the loss or theft. After that, the Embassy can issue a travel document only valid for the return journey to Germany. It is valid only for the duration of the journey, or up to one month maximum. It only authorise to the return journey to Germany (if applicable, transit through other EU countries), not to continued journeys to others countries. For a longer journey, a Temporary Passports can be issued (see 2. Temporary Passports). For the Travel Permit, you have to apply personally at the Embassy and present the following documents:

- proof of identity  (copy of German identity papers, photo identification e.g. driving license, student ID etc.)
- proof of German citizenship , e.g. copies of identity papers (also expired), birth certificates or civil status certificates connected with a copy of the identity paper of a parent or sibling. ***
- 2 biometric passport photos
- report of loss record from the police station
- For minor applicants: consent form; generally of the parents (signatures must be certified by a police station/registration office/German mission abroad), copies of parents' passports and child's birth certificate (copies must be certified by a police station/registration office/German mission abroad)

 If you don't carry these documents with you, you might also ask the registration office in Germany to fax or email it to the Embassy (fax: 00353-1-2693800 or German fax number: 030-1817 67158, email: info@dublin.diplo.de).

Please note that it may take a few days to obtain proof of your identity from Germany, if you are unable to provide an ID copy.

5. Application with the Honorary Consul in Galway

The Honorary Consul in Galway can only accept applications for Children's Passports for children under the age of 10 as well as biometric passports for children under the age of 6 if you make an appointment prior to the application.

Applications which are received by the Honorary Consul are forwarded to the Embassy in Dublin.

6. Biometric Data

Please note that since the introduction of the facial biometrical data on 1st November 2005, the quality of passport photos has to meet new requirements.

When applying for a new passport, the fingerprints of both forefingers will be scanned and saved on the chip of the passport to verify identity. After issuing of the passport, the fingerprints will be deleted from the system and only remain on the passport's chip. Therefore, you should check that all data is correct when filing the application, as you will have to come to the Embassy again if the passport needs to be re-issued due to incorrect entries.
